

BAYONET RULE.

Another Installment of State Press Comment, "and the Half Has Not Been Told."

The Overwhelming Sentiment Ridicules the So-Called "Riot and Rapine."

The Mayor and Sheriff Mercilessly Mauled Democracy and Bayonets Lie Down Together.

These Long Days of Imaginary Terror - Who Pays the Fiddler?

A Long-Felt Want. Seward Reporter.

What the voters of Omaha should take into serious consideration at the coming municipal election is whether officials cannot be elected who can govern that city and enforce the laws without calling for protection of the state militia and government troops every time there is some street parade of laboring-men's demonstration.

Still Worms.

Omaha was in a terrible pickle! The Willow Springs distillery was to lose a few hands by the strike. So troops were sent out there to guard the premises, the first and only private property that was thus guarded. The Omaha Republican says the government is interested in this distillery. This is the first intimation we have had that the U. S. government was engaged in the distillery business.

The Troops Saved Him.

The Omaha riot has at last been quelled, but not until the troops were called, and one man killed, besides two or three who were wounded nearly to death. Gov. Nance and Mayor Boyd have done well in bringing the strikers to time, but there is question in our mind whether it would not have been accomplished sooner if Jim Stephenson had been turned over to their tender mercies.

An Outrage on Taxpayers.

The Courier unhesitatingly pronounced the great military parade at Omaha as an outrage on the taxpayers of Nebraska. The entire state militia, with three or four companies of regulars, a Gatling gun and a twelve-pounder, were called into service to protect Omaha against the rioters. Possibly a few troops were necessary, but from the extravagant preparations made it would seem as though the state had been in danger of an invasion by a foreign power.

All Broken Up.

When the news reached Beatrice last Thursday morning that the presence of Company "G" would be required in Omaha to wipe out a mob five thousand strong, the faces of many of the boys suddenly became "sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought," and it seemed for a time as though the company would be about broken up by rheumatism, bilious attacks, and various other complaints, not omitting a singular malady which had a very weakening effect on the backbone.

A Shot at Boyd and Miller.

While we deprecate the condition of civil affairs in Omaha, we cannot censure the honorable young man who seeks to better his means of existence for the trouble occasioned by the "rabble and loafer element" in a city like Omaha. The idea of calling out government troops and the state militia, at a heavy expense, in a matter of no more serious nature than this has proved to be, clearly shows the weakness of the executive officials who have, we think, acted more from a desire to please the corporations than to meet an urgent necessity.

Fleasish Inhumanity.

If it is true, as reported, that Jim Stephenson, the contractor, whose employees began the strike, advertised for 500 men when he only needed 100, and then paid them $1.10 and $1.25, we should not cry if he were reduced to the necessity of working twelve hours at two shillings a day. This enticing men to leave home in the winter season, under false pretences of furnishing work at good pay, and then matching his cupidity against their necessities, is an exhibition of a fleasish inhumanity, and a depravity all but absolutely total. If a law could be framed to meet such a case, the culprit should receive no more mercy than he exhibited in dealing with those he so cruelly wronged.

Two Jacks and a Mule.

It does not appear from the reports we have received that the sheriff or mayor tried to bring the ringleaders to justice, before they called upon the governor for troops, but seem to have lost their heads at the first approach of danger, or what they imagined to be danger, and made an ass of themselves at once. In the meantime the strikers are quiet and orderly, but determined to obtain fair wages for a fair day's work, and as long as they restrain from violent proceedings, are entitled to the support of every citizen who is compelled to earn his bread by working for wages. From all accounts rents and provisions are high in Omaha, and it is impossible for a man and family to live on $1.25 per day. And a man who will take a contract to do work so low that he cannot pay higher wages ought to lose money on the contract; but those who know anything of Jim Stephenson know that he is not that kind of a bargain. We remember one bitter cold day last winter, while at Plainview, Jim Stephenson came into the hotel, wrapped in his buffalo overcoat and his head bundled up with scars, while his man had scarcely anything around his head and had frozen his face and ears during the long drive from Pierce in the face of the bitter northwest wind; and we also remember the unfeeling and brutal language he used to the man for not knowing better than to start out without being better prepared, and how he sent him out of the warm room to do something for him. It seems to us that we would strike for higher wages if we were compelled to work for such a man.

Strikes.

It appears that strikes are epidemic nowadays, or else Omaha has contaminated the whole country. Last week the dispatches announced a full line of strikes at different points. The iron workers at Homestead, near Pittsburgh, Pa., were on the strike and killed a "scab," but no troops or militia were called, and the strike ended peacefully by arbitration. At Lawrence, Mass., several thousands cotton mill hands are striking against reduction of wages, but the authorities by far have no idea to call the troops. At Columbus, Ohio, the tailors struck for an increase of wages; no troops as yet was called upon them. At Bloomington, Ill., the railroad hands are out; no militia in sight. At Cleveland some rolling mill hands demanded higher wages and ceased working. Their demand was refused, but the mayor did not telegraph for troops. In Topeka, Kansas, pipe layers for water works demanded an increase of wages and were disorderly, but even the temperance crank, St. John, had more sense than our own Nance and Mayor Boyd, and left both the militia and the strikers at rest. In the Cumberland regions, Maryland, 4,000 coal miners went out, but the democratic governor of that state is a better democrat than our democrats, Dr. Miller or Mayor Boyd, and believes that bayonet rule is not a democratic institution. At Troy, New York, 625 moulders are striking, but the dispatches do not inform us that the troops are getting ready for them. In Nebraska alone is a Rip Van Winkle of a governor and a cowardly mayor in Omaha, who put the city under martial law without any cause whatever.

Law, Order and Labor.

Let it be distinctly understood that the Times, is and has always been in favor of good order and obedience to existing laws however repulsive to the individual. He is not to decide whether the law is right or wrong. His business is to obey it in spirit and letter. We are in favor of all honorable and lawful means to improve the condition of laboring men, and to elevate that portion of society. The spirit of equality which has existed so long in our country and which has leveled all ranks, is dear to the heart of a true American. No distinction on account of nationality or pecuniary condition. We are opposed to any course that saps the life blood of labor to build up a monied aristocracy in our land. But whatever is accomplished must be peacefully and quietly done. As we said last week, "law and order must and will be maintained." We do not believe that the laboring men, the very men who stood bravely in the ranks in the face of rebel guns, who marched in heat and cold, who charged upon almost certain death, will wantonly now seek to destroy the government for which they risked and sacrificed so much. Let men who remained comfortably at home during the great conflict to preserve the nation beware how they impugn the motives and actions of those men. Let the sneaks, cowards and thugs who make the disturbance and outrage the law, be summarily dealt with. Let them also bear the odium themselves. Do not charge it upon the great army of honest, intelligent laboring men of our country. They rescued our nation from the oppressor and eighty years afterwards saved it from dire peril. They have produced our bread, manned our ships, and built and operated our mills and railroads. They work our mines, prune our forests and build our cities. As a class, they are every whit as good as the men who denounce them, and far more useful to the nation and to society. Do not suppose that we are upholding mobs and riots. We are only taking this time when we are most liable to be misconstrued to enter a protest against the fiery denunciations of laboring men, which class comprises nine-tenths of our citizens.

A Good Housewife.

A good housewife, when she is giving her house its spring renovating should bear in that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and surely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. CANNIBALS IN FEJEE.

Massacre of a Ship's Crew with the Story Told by Survivors. Details have been received at Plymouth from Sydney of the recent frightful massacre of a portion of the crew of the trading schooner Isabella on one of the islands of the Fiji group. The narrative was furnished by Mr. J. E. Hawkins, the master of the Isabella. The vessel, with Mr. Mair, government agent, on board, left the Isabella for the Island of Santo at 7 a. m. on Nov. 12. The day passed without the boat returning. Mr. Hawkins sent boats in search, but without result. Next morning another boat was sent ashore. They met a boat from the steamer May Queen, of Queensland, which reported that two of the missing boat's crews had that morning swam off to that vessel, which was at anchor some four miles from the scene of the massacre, and that both were severely wounded. Two boats then proceeded along the shore in search of the missing boat, which was found hauled some distance into the bush. She had been gutted, and natives were hovering about at a respectful distance. Two cars were found in the bush, on the opposite side of amiel creek. The landing party then proceeded inland, leaving a man in each boat to keep them advised and to be in readiness. The search party came to a village, at which was found some of the gear belonging to the missing boat. As the search party only consisted of one white man and five natives, it was thought advisable not to go further into the bush, but to return to the vessel and report what had been done. As the party returned to the boats the head of Mr. Mair, the government agent, was found among the rocks frightfully tomahawked. In the result a stronger party was formed, consisting of two boats from the May Queen, two from the Surprise, and one from the Mavis. They landed, and in a village further in the bush than the one previously already they found parts of a human body. The boats having returned to the ship, Capt Hawkins decided to bury these remains as well as the head of Mr. Mair, which was done.

The survivors of the massacre were two half-caste Fijians, viz., Malaka and Jimmy - both serving on board the Isabella as boat's crew. They state they saw the two white men killed - i. e., Mr. Mair, Government Agent, and Mr. Hampshire, mate - also the two others of the boat's crew - i. e., Don Juan and Amos, half-castes. The boat was attacked when about to leave the beach, having recruited three men. No offense was given to the natives, who had brought down the recruits themselves. Malaka had two severe tomahawk cuts on the head, one being on the left side penetrating the skull. The blow must, fortunately, have been a slanting one; it was three and a half inches long, but the brain was not cut into. The other wound was on the forehead, between the eyes. These wounds were sewed up by the Captain of the May Queen. The other man saved was a knife wound in the forehead. These two state that they jumped overboard and swam away. The natives pursued them, but they were able to land and hide among the rocks. When the moon rose they swam to another place, hid themselves, slept awhile, and at daybreak swam, with the assistance of logs of wood, to the schooner May Queen. They both state that they saw Mr. Mair shoot a man through the body with his revolver, but he was overpowered by numbers. Mr. Hampshire was shot through the body and received a cut from a tomahawk in the side. He fell overboard and tried to swim away, but was surrounded by the natives and hacked to pieces, as was also Don Juan. Amos was shot dead and fell overboard. All having been done that could be done, as the natives had retired far back in the bush, and it would have been impossible to get at them, Captain Hawkins deemed it his duty to proceed at once to Fiji and report the matter to the authorities.
